

Conquering the Flamborough Plains

Big Idea: Without a strong leader in an absolute monarchy, fragmentation is inevitable.

Each table group will have a Ras identified to lead a conquest of the great Flamborough Plains. The remaining group members will be the Ras' loyal offspring (of which there are many), as well as the Ras' best friend – each commanding an army of their own.

Ras: 100 warriors under their direct rule + 2 cannons

Best friend of the Ras 100 warriors under their direct rule + 2 cannons

Children of the Ras: 50 warriors under their direct rule

Task:

- Formulate a plan to conquer the Flamborough Plains and all of its settlements. Be as detailed as possible, using all of your “family” in the process.
- Establish a system by which your khan will rule the Flamborough Plains – how will the Ras' authority be felt and maintained in the Plains' settlements?
- Deal with what happens next . . .
