

My grandfather and I still needed to complete some preparations before we started planting. First, we need to break up the big chunks of soil and dirt, so we can have a nice even planting surface.

Next, we need to build a metal-fence like structure, in order for the green beans to grow off of.

First we placed metal rods at certain corners of the garden so they stood 6ft tall. Afterwards, we placed some wooden rods at the top of the metal rods connecting it to the backyard fence. This provides some support for the metal rods. Finally, we wrapped the metal like fence around the garden, with support from the metal rods we recently placed. With these final preparations we are ready to start planting!
