

I have recently decided to partake in this covictory garden assignment. I knew this wouldn't be much of a change for me, as my grandparents and I always sprout up a vegetable garden each year with zucchini, cucumbers, tomatoes, etc. Our vegetable garden is about 23.82ft by 7.42ft, but that is not including our vast gardens where we plant smaller trees, plants, bushes, etc. However, for this assignment I will just stick to the vegetable garden.

A couple of days ago my grandfather, and I did more labour intensive work which meant digging up the old dirt, and soil about 1ft down. According to my grandfather, this is an important step in having a successful vegetable garden, so the soil, and dirt are able to receive some oxygen flow. I will post some pictures down below. I will keep you all informed for the coming weeks ahead of my vegetable garden.
