

Waterdown after the Second World War

Changing Values

Updated

What is changing? What could the changes you are observing mean about Canadian society?

Waterdown's first post-Second World War neighbourhood is located around Margaret and James Streets. Explore this part of the community and make some observations about what people valued (wanted) in life following the Second World War.